

Environmental, Health and Safety Commitment

At MillerCoors we believe that to sustain our business and create America's Best Beer Company, we must maintain safe workplaces, act as responsible citizens in our communities, and be good stewards of the environment.

Two overarching beliefs underpin our commitment to the environment, health and safety:

1. We believe work injuries are preventable and worth preventing. We are committed to the elimination of workplace injuries and illnesses.
2. We believe good business practices embrace environmental stewardship. We are committed to reducing the environmental impacts of our fine products throughout their life-cycle.

Strong environmental, health and safety leadership and governance systems are essential to fulfilling these commitments. Towards that end, the following principles are practiced by all employees, and promoted with our partners, contractors, and suppliers.

We set performance objectives and demonstrate continual improvement towards achieving safety and environmental excellence, while openly communicating our progress.

We evaluate new products, processes, and facilities to minimize environmental, health, and safety impacts,

We pursue environmental sustainability by practicing water stewardship, reducing our energy and carbon footprint, driving packaging sustainability, and moving towards zero waste operations.

We adhere to environmental, health and safety laws and regulations as well as MillerCoors Policies and Standards. We maintain transparent and cooperative relationships with regulatory agencies.

We build a culture of engagement in safety and environmental excellence at all levels of the organization. We develop our employees and establish clear mechanisms for responsibility and involvement.

We partner with stakeholders to enhance the health of communities where we live and work. We share best practices in safety, sustainability, compliance assurance, risk management, and pollution prevention.
